AXIS EUROPE IS ASSAULTED BY AIR FROM SOUTH, WEST; LARGE AREAS OF LEGHORN, ITALY, ARE IN RUINS

RAF Bombers Roar Toward Germany During Night In Wake of Evening Assaults by U. S. Force on Nazi U-Boat Base at St. Nazaire and Flying Field at Beaumont Le Roger

By International News Service
New and heavy aerial assaults on Axis Europe from the south and from the west were disclosed in Allied communiques today.

Large areas of the Italian mainland port of Leghorn lay in blackened ruins in the wake of a heavy attack yesterday by American Flying Fortresses from North Africa which coincided with assaults on several important enemy-held airbases in Sardinia by other American bombers of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's command.

Watchers on Britain's channel coast reported large formations of RAF bombers roared toward Germany during the night in the wake of last evening's blistering assault by Flying Fortresses of the 8th U. S. Air Force on the Nazi U-boat base at St. Nazaire and an important enemy flying field at Beaumont Le Roger, both in France.

In yesterday's attack on Leghorn, Fortresses from North Africa caused many explosions and fires and blasted enemy shipping at the Italian port, which is 200 miles northwest of Rome. While Leghorn was being attacked, the Italian island of Sardinia was attacked by medium bombers.

B-25 Mitchells, escorted by Lightnings, bombed barracks, administration buildings and dispersal areas at the Olbia, Venafiorita, Alghero and Fertilia airbases. Marauder medium bombers, accompanied by Lightnings and Warhawks, attacked flying fields at Milis and Decimomannu. In all these attacks, 12 enemy planes were shot down and two Allied aircraft failed to return.

Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters also announced that British Wellington bombers on Monday night heavily attacked San Giovanni, ferry terminal at the toe of the Italian boot, blasting railroad marshalling yards.

In the Pacific, six Japanese warplanes in a formation of nine bombers and nine Zeros were believed knocked out in a furious sky battle when the Japs raided the Allied base at Darwin, Australia.

Stage Coach May Become Reality at Quakertown

QUAKERTOWN, June 28—There is speculation locally as to whether Quakertown residents might after a lapse of years and years again enjoy a stage line.

Edwin Raudenbush, who resides between Applebachville and Strawtown, is considering the operating of such a line to transport people from Haycock Township to Quakertown on Saturdays, so they may have opportunity to shop, attend the "movies," etc.

Mr. Raudenbush opened the "horse and buggy season" a few weeks ago when he hitched up "Black Bill" to a shiny Seiple buggy, and drove into Applebachville.

The buggy was a beautiful job done in red with black trim, one of Martin Seiple's products, widely known at the turn of the century.

However, the stage coach is something else again although Mr. Raudenbush is making plans; already one is in operation near Easton. Headquarters for the stage will no doubt be at the Stage Coach Inn at Strawtown, presided over by Maurice Black, antiquarian and ballistics expert. His display of old flint locks, Indian fighter guns and Kentucky rifles brings collectors from far and near.

CLEANED BY SCRIBES

Children's rights, from the standpoint of both the adult and the child, were features of a program on children presented at the meeting of the Plumsteadville Grange held Friday evening.

Agnes Funk read an original essay on what she, as a child, considered her rights, naming as foremost among them a good home and parents, an opportunity for education and an allotment of time for both work and play and possessions of her own. The adult's point of view was presented by Mrs. Ralph Zemel who emphasized the necessities of life, proper pre-school training, a regular weekly allowance, however small, and religious training.

Charged with having violated the regulations during the blackout on June 16, Kimber C. Farrow, an occupant of the trailer camp located at "Roadside Rest," Edison, was given a hearing before Justice of the Peace William Wrigley, on Friday.

Farrow, who is employed at the Naval base at Hallowell, pleaded guilty to the charge, and was fined $15 and costs.

Charges were lodged by Miss Adeline Schonwald, an air raid warden in Doylestown township, and the daughter of the property owner on which the trailer camp is located.

Air raid wardens, it was brought out at the largely attended hearing, have been having difficulty with the occupants of the camp during the past four blackouts because of their lack of co-operation. It was stated on several occasions they were lax in extinguishing their lights, and on several occasions they showed reluctance to enter their trailers during the blackouts.

During the blackout on the evening of June 16, it was stated, Farrow was found sitting outside his trailer. Miss Schonwald, it was stated, requested Farrow to go inside the trailer, but, it was testified, he showed a defiant attitude and refused to comply with the request.

Lt. Gerald F. Clymer, formerly of Quakertown, now a prisoner of war in Nazi Germany, was among the more than 1,000 members of the Eighth U. S. Air Force to receive decorations for heroism in aerial assaults on Germany and Nazi-held territory in Europe, it is announced by the War Department.

"The intense air action that the Eighth Air Force is carrying on against Germany and German-occupied territory in Europe is reflected in the largest list of decorations ever made in one announcement from any theatre by the U. S. Army Air Forces," the announcement said.

Seventy Pennsylvanians, including nineteen others from communities in the eastern part of the State, twenty-eight men from New Jersey and one from Delaware received the awards which ranged from the Distinguished Flying Cross to the third Oak Leaf Cluster to the Air Medal.

Lt. Clymer, who was awarded an air medal before his capture, has now been given the coveted first Oak Leaf Cluster.

His mother, Cynthia Clymer, who will receive the decoration, recently received a letter from her son in a German prison camp.

INCLUDE LIMA BEANS IN THE GARDEN PLANS; FLAVOR WHEN FRESHLY PICKED FROM PLOT IS SUPERB; BUSH TYPE GIVES A FINE RETURN

By Jane Cochran
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

Every Victory Gardener has set aside part of his ground space for beans. He's planning on excellent meals from his stringless beans or his pole beans.

He shouldn't neglect, however, to include lima beans. Their flavor, when freshly picked from the garden is superb. They're a warm weather crop—they shouldn't be planted until the garden is completely free from frost.

Lima beans yield well and they're a member of the useful family that returns nitrogen to the soil through the action of bacteria in the nodules on the roots. These bacteria secrete nitrogen which plants need to grow and develop.

Lima beans come in several different types—the small seeded bush, preferred by man, the large seeded bush and pole limas. There are two types of limas, the small seeded type—the butter bean of the south—and the large seeded type.

You'll get a heavier yield from the small seeded bush limas than from the large seeded type, and they can also be planted closer together. This is an important point to consider in the small garden.

Limas all require more room than pod beans, and do not grow well when crowded. In them, you'll be interested in the beans themselves, as the pods are useless for the table.

The small seeded type should be planted from four to six inches apart in the row and the rows should be 18 to 24 inches apart. The large seeded plants should be allowed at least one foot in the row. In planting a 40-foot row, six to 10 ounces of seed will be required. They should be planted one to two inches deep and the eye of the bean should always be down when they are planted.

Pole limas will be the most abundant bearers of all, and in addition, they're very decorative. If you have a garden fence or trellis, their dark green leaves will make a fine covering for it. King of the Garden is the outstanding variety of pole limas for Victory Gardens. You can expect pods six inches in length, containing five or six fine quality beans.

In planting them to climb a fence or trellis, sow them six inches apart. When they're to climb a single pole, plant four plants to a hill.

REPUBLICANS MEET HERE; HEAR PLANS FOR REGISTRATION

Committeemen and Committeewomen Assemble in Odd Fellows Hall

SPEECHES ARE MADE

Burgess Anderson Suggests John S. Roberts, Jr., For County Commissioner

A largely attended meeting of Republican men and women and party workers was held in Odd Fellows Hall last night. Committeemen and committeewomen from lower Bucks County, as well as some of the men and women prominent in the Republican party from the central and upper districts also attended. These included Ernest Harvey, Clerk of the Registration Board; County Chairman and Mrs. A. Harry Clayton; District Attorney and Mrs. Edward J. Biester; Edward W. Watson, Register of Wills; Harris Holmes, Doylestown; Assistant District Attorney Willard Curtin; Hon. Thomas B. Stockham, Morrisville; Stacy B. Brown, Newtown; and James E. Groome, Yardley.

The method of handling party registrations was explained by Ernest Harvey, Clerk of the Registration Board. He told of the traveling boards which will register those desiring to vote at the coming primary election.

A number of speakers addressed the meeting, including Senator Howard I. James, former U. S. Senator Joseph R. Grundy, Representative Stockham, Mr. Groome, Mrs. David Sheerer, Jr., president of the Lower Bucks County Council of Republican Women, and others.

Burgess Clifford L. Anderson addressed the group, and in speaking of the coming primary and the general election, mentioned the offices for which candidates will be nominated in Bucks County. He called the attention of those present to the availability for the office of county commissioner of John S. Roberts, Jr., of Bristol.

The tenor of Burgess Anderson's remarks dealt with the wise policy of many years of the Republican party to continue on the Board of County Commissioners for two terms one of the Republicans elected to that body, so that at all times there would be one member who had intimate knowledge of the business transacted during the previous four years. This policy and provision was not applied, however, eight years ago, when Mr. Roberts was one of the Commissioners.

Mr. Anderson further stated that since Mr. Roberts' retirement from the Board of Commissioners, his official relations with the board had been such as to intimately acquaint him with its affairs, and with the difficult times ahead for all governmental bodies during the next four years, experience would be greatly needed. He could suggest no one more capable to fill the office than Mr. Roberts.

Mr. Anderson told of his intimate association with Mr. Roberts in the affairs of Bristol Borough and of his qualifications and experience which particularly equip him for the position of county commissioner. "I hope and trust that you will keep this in mind," said the speaker.

The suggestion of Burgess Anderson met with general approval on the part of the audience.

FLEETWINGS WINS FIFTH STRAIGHT GAME OF SEASON

Airplane Builders Defeat Fort Dix Regulars By Score of 1 to 0

WAS A PITCHING DUEL Friedman vs. Verdel Gives Spectators A Real Thrill

The Pritol High School field was the scene of a brilliant pitching duel last evening as the Fleetwings nine won its fifth consecutive victory of the season defeating the strong Fort Dix Regulars, 1-0, before the largest crowd of the season.

George "Lefty" Friedman, former Simon-Gratz high school hurler, was on the mound for the aircraft workers while doing the hill chores for the soldiers was Al Verdel, former pitcher for the Bordentown Military Institute. Both boys allowed five hits. Friedman had eight strikeouts to his credit while Verdel fanned four.

Verdel seemed to get better as the game progressed and he aided his own downfall by committing a balk. Friedman was in hot water in the sixth and eighth innings but managed to escape damage. The Fort Dix team twice had runners put out at the plate in the sixth.

Umpire "Reds" Rafferty ordered Meyer Bloom, first-sacker for the Fort Dix team, from the game in the sixth after a heated argument following a close decision at the plate. Bloom attempted to bat when it was his turn but Rafferty refused to permit him and another argument ensued but Bloom was benched for the remainder of the night.

The only marker of the tilt was registered in the fourth and was driven in by "Mike" DeRisi, first-sacker of the aircraftmen. With two zone, Breslin got a clean hit to left. Breslin started for second and Verdel committed a balk, giving him the base. DeRisi then dumped his winning single to center to score Breslin. The play at the plate would have been close, had not Catcher Morrison dropped the ball.

The Fort Dix had a grand time in the sixth but could not push over the tying run. Longacre opened with a pass. He stole second. Cieslak hit safely to right and Longacre attempted to score but on a close play, Mitchell tagged out the runner for the putout. Cieslak went to second on the play. Loyda hit to Miksis and Cieslak was trapped between second and third but in run-down, Cieslak got back to second safely. Fields was passed to load the bases. Weber went to bat for Bloom. On the first pitch, Cieslak started for the plate, believing Weber would sacrifice, but the batter let the ball go by with the result that Cieslak was run-down and tagged out. Weber then fanned.

The soldiers started trouble again in their last turn with the bat. Bond opened with a double to right. Longacre lined out to Barbetta. Cieslak beat out a hit to short. Boyda flied out and Fields grounded out for the final outs of the contest.

BASS SEASON TO OPEN WITH FINE PROSPECTS JULY 1

Season Will Then Extend To November 30th; Trout Season Ends July 31st

GAS SHORTAGE A BAR

Anglers May Discover Good Fishing in Nearby Streams

HARRISBURG, June 29—Pennsylvania's bass season opens July 1st and extends to November 30th—and the trout season ends July 31st, this giving anglers their opportunity to fish for both these species of fish during the month of July.

"Anglers may have some difficulty in getting to their far-away favorite streams this season," says the Department of Commerce, "but fortunately no Pennsylvania angler has to go too far away from his home to catch fish and enjoy his sport. It may be, too, that anglers will make discoveries of good fishing in the waters of their own immediate neighborhood since a heavy stocking program by the Fish Commission and the natural propagation of fish during an exceptionally good season would indicate the possibility of good catches."

When the "bass season" opens it will be legal to catch large and small mouth bass, white, crappie, strawberry and calico bass, pike perch, also called wall-eyed pike or Susquehanna salmon and muskellunge. Lake, or salmon trout, also become legal July 1st.

More than 300 tons of fish from the State's hatcheries were placed in streams and lakes of Pennsylvania this year, despite the difficulties of transportation. All of the fish were of legal size and many of them were as long as 18 inches. Much of the stocking was done in streams near congested areas so that anglers would be able to go fishing without going too far away from their own homes. Many of the best bass waters can be reached by rail transportation—if one is not averse to hiking some short distance from the rail lines to the streams.

"Fishing is a form of recreation enjoyed by thousands upon thousands of Pennsylvanians this year," says the Department of Commerce, "and whenever in these days of heavy work a man can get away from his job for a day or two—when his absence will not cripple the war effort he should go fishing. The relaxation and recreation that come from a day or two on a stream or lake will help to build up physical and mental fitness to do a still better job when the angler returns to his work. And if the angler is lucky he not only gets his sport but some food as well."

An indication in the apparent increased interest in fishing is seen in the number of requests for fishing information being received by the State Department of Commerce. These requests come not only from anglers in adjoining states but from Pennsylvanians as well. The Department's booklet on "Fishing Accommodations in Pennsylvania" went into its second printing because of the increased demand. The booklet lists places where overnight accommodations may be obtained in all but a few of the counties of the State, where guide service is available, the railroad lines serving the fishing areas and the fishing laws.

FRANKLIN NINE STILL UNDEFEATED

The Franklin team remained undefeated in the Bristol Youth League by winning its 3rd straight game last evening on the Rohm and Haas field. The Third Ward nine was the victim with the final score being 8-2.

Joe Sagolla did the hurling for the winners and limited the Warders to seven hits which he kept well-scattered. The Franklin team had 11 safe blows off "Len" Simons with four being for extra base blows.

It was a good ball game until the fifth inning, the score standing at 2-2 at that time before Franklin staged a rally which netted a quintet of runs. Centonzi featured this frame with a long triple to deep center-field.

Phila. Stations Not To Give All-Clear

The station officials say that in the future they will announce the all-clear as a news item, but not until the all-clear siren actually has sounded.

The new policy was announced in identical letters to the Second and Third Army Service Commands. The stations are KYW, WCAU, WIP, WFIL, WIBG and WVEN.

The letters stated that on June 23, when the last alert was held, the stations were informed by the Third Service Command that the all-clear signal could be broadcast at 10:55 p. m.

Stations KYW and WIP announced the all-clear at 10:55½, the letter said, and WCAU at 10:59½. The all-clear siren actually sounded at 10:59½.

"In addition to that complication," the letter said, "the all-clear was not heard in the territory surrounding Philadelphia until three or four minutes after it sounded in Philadelphia. This again caused confusion, and the public, not knowing the cause, blamed the radio stations."

"The situation was not helped by local civilian defense representatives who gave statements to the newspapers that the radio stations gave the all-clear too soon."

"The radio stations feel that in justice to the listening public the all-clear signal service should be discontinued until more definite and dependable arrangements are agreed upon between the Army and civilian defense authorities so that the stations can receive punctual advices."
